Report

Lecture by Dr Dinesh Kumar on "Dynamics of Research in English- I"

The Research guidance lectures started off from 1st February 2021. The first lecture in the series was delivered by Dr Dinesh Kumar, Vaze College. The session started with an introduction to a formula for a perfect 'Research Title'. The entire session was divided into two different parts. The first part of the session covered the importance of an attractive Research title. Dr Dinesh showcased three different ways in which students could frame a research title revolving around a single novel and a literary theory. The students were amazed to learn the way in which three different titles could be created around the same research area. In the second session Dr Dinesh introduced the different areas that students could use for their research work. The areas ranged from the study of Comparative literature to the application of various theories to Art, Films and other literary works. Further, students were introduced to sixteen potential areas of research in detail. Students were benefited as they came across some new research areas such as Spirituality, Journalism and Mash up Fiction. The use of PPT slides by Dr Dinesh made the session more interactive and valuable. The session ended with Dr Dinesh solving student's queries revolving around the use of theories on various novels. 19 students were present for this session.
