GLIMPSES: 20th October, 2020

A talk on “Dealing with Stress and Anxiety among children and Adolescents” was organized on Oct’ 20, 2020. The talk was delivered by Dr Megha Pushkarna, Counselling Psychologist and Assistant Professor at IILM University, New Delhi. She discussed about anxiety phase which is a normal part of our lives, and everyone goes through these phases. This phase is temporary and usually harmless. She explained the students how to identify common sources of stress, self-management while being anxious as well as being a resource for friends.

I'm out of control"

Anxiety and Adolescents

- Anxiety during adolescence typically centres on changes in the way the adolescent's body looks and feels, social acceptance, and conflicts about independence.
- When flooded with anxiety, adolescents may appear extremely shy.
- They may avoid their usual activities or refuse to engage in new experiences.
- They may pretend to be over the top or act apart from friends.
- Or in an attempt to diminish or deny their fears and worries, they may engage in risky behaviours, drug experimentation, or suppressive sexual behaviour.
- In many cases, adolescent anxiety disorders may have begun earlier as separation anxiety, usually a parent.
- School avoidance because of transition into middle school or junior high. It may also be triggered by secondary unrelated to school, such as a divorce, illness or a death in the family.

You don't have depression, you're just sad.
You don't have insomnia, you just sleep late.
You don't have anxiety, you're just nervous.
You don't have anorexia, you just skipped a meal.
You don't have bipolar, you just have mood swings.
You don't have OCD, you just like your things clean.
You don't have amnesia, you just have had memory.
